Daugurs of the Sea. The fourth day a perfect mountain of water, the biggest sea I have ever een in all my life, came towering up and fell on the Roddam. I thought she was foundered, but she shook it off, and we saw that the after deck house and the hand steering year had been carried away as clean as cutting off the top of a cake. A plece of the truck had got jammed in the wheel chains, and the next bash the rudder got broke the chains. In half a minute we were wallowing helplessly in the trough of the sea, and I knew that another big sea would end the chapter. Getting the men together, I made a try at get-ting the chain picked up and spliced. The steward, who was a brave lad, went over the side and got up the We had tied ourselves tothat kept us from being washed over-board. In a few minutes we had conee up the chain with a strong nd were ready to get back amidhips when the wreck of the hand steering gear, which was swinging free, came clipping around and caught the steward's leg, taking it off like a butcher chops off a bone.-Metropoli-

Gifts at Baptism.

Gifts to infants on their baptism are of ancient origin. Formerly the sponsors generally offered gilt spoons to the child. These spoons were called apostle spoons, because the figures of the twelve apostles were carved at the top of the handles. Rich sponsors gave the complete set of twelve, while for those who were not so opulent four was considered the proper number, and poor sponsors would content themselves with offering one. In the latter case the handle of the spoon generally exhibited the figure of any saint in honor of whom the caild received its name. It is in allusion to this custom that, when Cranmer professes himself to be inworthy of being sponsor to the young princess, Shakespeare makes the king "Come, come, my lord, you'd spare your Chamberlaine's Cough Remedy.

No one who is acquainted with its good qualities can be surprised at the great popularity of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It not only cures colds and grip effectually and permanently, but prevents these diseases from resulting pneumonia. It is also certain cure for croup. Whooping cough is not dar-gerous when this remedy is given. It ontains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. It is also pleasant to take. When all of these facts are taken into consideration it is not surprising that people in foreign lands as well as at home, esteem this lands as well as at home, esteem this remedy very highly and very few are willing to take any other after having once used it.
